

The YT Launchpad Funnel

A 14-offer JVZoo/WarriorPlus-style launch, structured like the competitor screenshots you shared — but every credit allotment below is reverse-engineered from your actual OpenRouter / SiliconFlow / Replicate costs, so the funnel can pay 50% commission and still hold margin at worst-case usage.

Prepared 2026-07-03 • Ceiling: $170 • Commission: 50% • Basis: real per-call pricing, not estimates

BEFORE YOU BUILD ANY OF THIS

3 things in the codebase will bankrupt this funnel if unfixed

1. 4 of your 5 engines have zero credit enforcement. Thumbnail Engine, Clickbait Thumbnail, Voice Studio and Video Creation Pro only check `if (!user)` — there is no server-side cap. Only Video Engine actually deducts credits today. Launch traffic on JV day can be thousands of clicks in an hour; without a hard cap, a single buyer can script unlimited calls against a paid API with no revenue offsetting it. This must be built before any priced OTO touches these 4 tools — everything below assumes it exists.
2. Your video generator has no real model wired in. `REPLICATE_VIDEO_MODEL` is still the literal placeholder owner/model-name in `.env.local`. AI video generation is by far your most expensive line item ($0.20–$2.40+ per 30-second clip depending on model) — OTO8 below can't be priced safely until you've picked and tested one specific model.
3. "One-time fee, credits refill every month, forever" is how these funnels quietly go into loss two years later. A single $17 payment funding a monthly top-up in perpetuity is an uncapped liability. Every allotment in this blueprint is a lifetime pool, not a monthly refill — pair it with paid top-up packs (see closing section) instead of free recurring credits.

STEP 1 — REAL COST BASIS

What each generation actually costs you

Pulled from current OpenRouter / SiliconFlow / Replicate pricing (July 2026), then rounded up for safety margin. This is the number the whole funnel is priced against.

ACTION	MODEL / API	REAL COST	PRICED AT (BUFFERED)
1 text generation (topic / hook / one script)	gemini-2.5-flash via OpenRouter	≈$0.0014/call	$0.01 = 1 credit
Full 11-call "Kit" bundle	gemini-2.5-flash × 11	≈$0.016	$0.08 = 8 credits
1 thumbnail / clickbait image	flash (prompt) + Z-Image-Turbo	≈$0.007	$0.02 = 2 credits
1,000 characters of AI voiceover	kokoro-82m via OpenRouter	≈$0.001	$0.01 = 1 credit
1 AI-generated 30-sec video clip	Replicate, Wan-class budget model	≈$1.20-$2.40	$2.00 = 200 credits

STEP 2 — ONE UNIT FOR THE WHOLE FUNNEL

The universal credit = $0.01 of worst-case cost

Every offer below is priced so total lifetime credits × $0.01 stays at 5–6% of the sale price — even if a buyer maxes out every credit on day one. Video credits are deliberately expensive in this same unit (200 credits = 1 clip), which is why cheap tiers get none and Video Creation Pro gets very few.

STEP 3 — THE 14 OFFERS

FE → OTO13, priced against worst-case usage

Same shape as the competitor funnel you screenshotted (core → unlimited → DFY packs → niche tools → training → licenses), rebuilt on your actual toolset. Static/content offers (DFY packs, masterclass) carry near-zero COGS and are your highest-margin items — lean on them for volume.

*Static/content offers carry no per-unit AI cost beyond the one-time creation of the templates — these are your safest revenue.

ON OTO8 SPECIFICALLY

Why "unlimited AI video" can't be sold cheap — and the workaround

A true AI-generated clip runs $1.20–$2.40+ depending on the Replicate model you wire up; four clips already burns $5.80–$9.60 of a $97 sale. Don't market this as "unlimited AI video." Split it in two: unlimited template-based slideshow videos (stock footage + Ken Burns pan + your existing cheap TTS + captions — this is what Pictory/InVideo actually sell, and it's nearly free per generation) marketed as the bulk deliverable, plus a small lifetime allotment of true AI-generated clips as a bonus, with paid top-up packs for buyers who want more. That protects margin while the "unlimited faceless video" claim stays honest.

STEP 4 — WHY 5–6% COGS IS THE RIGHT TARGET

The commission math, per $100 sold

Gross sale price	$100.00
– Affiliate commission (50%)	–$50.00
– Platform + payment processor fees (~4%)	–$4.00
– Refund reserve (typical IM-launch rate, 15–18%)	–$16.00
Realistic net you can actually count on	≈$30.00

Against that realistic ~30% net, a worst-case COGS of 5–6% of the gross price is actually 17–20% of your real take-home — still leaves you roughly three-quarters of that $30 as clean profit even if every credit gets used and every model assumption is exactly right. That's the buffer that keeps you out of the red.

CONTINUITY — DO THIS ONE

Monthly "Fuel Tank" Top-Up ($27–47/mo)

Every offer above is a one-time lifetime pool by design — which means buyers will run out eventually. That moment is your best upsell, not a support ticket: a small recurring membership that refills credits is where launch funnels turn one-time cash into ongoing profit. Skipping this is the biggest missed-revenue pattern in this niche.

BEFORE YOU LAUNCH

Checklist

- ☐ Add server-side credit deduction to Thumbnail Engine, Clickbait Thumbnail, Voice Studio, and Video Creation Pro — none of the four enforce a cap today.
- ☐ Pick and load-test one real Replicate video model; confirm its actual $/clip before OTO8 goes live at $97.
- ☐ Build the credit ledger as a lifetime pool per user, not a monthly reset, for every one-time-fee tier.
- ☐ Stand up the paid top-up / Fuel Tank membership before day one — it's the safety valve once lifetime credits run out.
- ☐ Confirm your JV platform's actual fee schedule (JVZoo/WarriorPlus) so the "~4%" line above matches reality exactly.

Cost basis: OpenRouter (gemini-2.5-flash, kokoro-82m), SiliconFlow (Z-Image-Turbo), Replicate video model pricing — July 2026 public rates. Recompute the 14-offer table if any provider repriced.
